

CPD Framework leading to a BSc (Hons) in Applied Health Sciences Independent Study APPS3001/2

This module gives the student experience of independent working. It provides opportunity for them to demonstrate the knowledge and intellectual skills developed in previous modules through the planning, operationalisation, analysis and discussion of a substantive piece of work whilst under the guidance of a supervisor.

The Independent Study is the culmination of the student's work and provides the forum for them to demonstrate their learning and development. It enables them to apply their own knowledge and understanding to the exploration and development of an aspect of their own professional practice. The module allows the student to display their ability to work independently and synthesise skills and knowledge from their subject area.
