

CPD Framework leading to a BSc (Hons) in Applied Health Sciences Leg Ulcer Management APPS3105

Epidemiological studies suggest that up to 2% of the population will suffer from leg ulcers at some point in their lives with two thirds of these occurring in elderly people. Demographic data predicts a rise in the numbers of elderly people into the next century, which will clearly indicate an increase in the numbers of leg ulcers and as a consequence increase health care costs. During the last decade the management of leg ulcers has changed dramatically with more emphasis now focused on using effective evidence based treatments.

This module has been designed to meet the learning and development needs of practitioners in relation to individuals with leg ulceration and to facilitate the delivery of holistic care derived from an evidence base. It will focus on the effective multidisciplinary assessment and management of the patient's physical and psychosocial needs.
