

Dr Darren Oldridge

Senior Lecturer in History

Institute of Humanities & Creative Arts

Contact Details

email: d.oldridge@worc.ac.uk

tel: 01905 85 5302

Darren Oldridge is a specialist in early modern religious history, with a particular interest in witchcraft and the Devil. He has published widely in this area: his most recent books are Strange Histories (Routledge 2005), The Devil in Tudor and Stuart England (2nd edition: History Press 2010) and, as editor, The Witchcraft Reader (2nd edition: Routledge 2008). At present he is writing The Devil: A Very Short Introduction for Oxford University Press.

At Worcester Darren teaches modules that reflect these interests, including 'Religion and Society in England' and 'Witchcraft'. He has also worked on the history of media and sexuality, and teaches modules in these fields. More broadly, he is interested in the interdisciplinary study of the concept of evil, including its treatment in theology, poetry and film.

Teaching & Research

Professional Bodies

Publications

External Responsibilities

© University of Worcester Henwick Grove, WR2 6AJ Tel: 01905 855000 - Last reviewed: Thursday, 24 May 2012

Page can be found:

Home / Discover Worcester / Academic departments / Institute of Humanities and Creative Arts / Meet our experts / Dr Darren Oldridge

<http://www.worcester.ac.uk/discover/dr-darren-oldridge.html>