

Paul Hazell

Senior Lecturer in Creative Digital Media

Institute of Humanities & Creative Arts

Contact Details

email: p.hazell@worc.ac.uk

tel: 01905 85 5392

Before becoming a full-time academic, Paul worked as a freelance multimedia designer and a part-time lecturer at Falmouth School of Art and Design. He was Head of Art and Design at the University of Worcester and was also Project Manager for the Digital Arts Centre, overseeing its design and development before heading the Centre when it became operational.

Teaching & Research

Paul continues to work as a freelance designer in print, web design, photography, and multimedia. His research interests include pedagogical issues relating to the relationship between theory and practice in applied media education. Photography is also both a professional and research interest for him and, in this context, he hopes to mount an exhibition of desert photography next year. He is a Medici Fellow.

Qualifications

Dip. Tech. Illustration
MA
BA(Hons)

Interests

Paul is fascinated by anything mechanical and, as a hobby, restores old vehicles. He is also a keen traveller and 'overlander', and has just completed his third overland trip to the Sahara, using his trusty Land Rover - this time to the remote Libyan desert. This pastime allows Paul to combine his passion for travel, things mechanical and photography.

External Responsibilities

© University of Worcester Henwick Grove, WR2 6AJ Tel: 01905 855000 - Last reviewed: Thursday, 24 May 2012

Page can be found:

Home / Discover Worcester / Academic departments / Institute of Humanities and Creative Arts / Meet our experts / Paul Hazell

<http://www.worcester.ac.uk/discover/paul-hazell.html>