Professor Dawn Brooker is the Director of the Association for Dementia Studies, having established it in 2009 and built it up to what it is today. Dawn enjoys working at the interface between the experience of those living with dementia, those developing care practice and those undertaking research to ensure that there is real knowledge transfer and translation between these different world-views. She is internationally recognised for scholarship in practice development of person centred dementia care and has long established working relationships with practitioners and scholars worldwide.

Dawn qualified as a clinical psychologist in 1984 and worked in the NHS in a variety of clinical and managerial posts for 17 years before moving into academia in 1999. She was influenced greatly by the late Professor Tom Kitwood who mentored her PhD research. Following Kitwood's death she was invited to take his work on Dementia Care Mapping forwards at the University of Bradford where she was awarded a personal chair in 2005.

Qualifications

PhD (1998), Improving the quality of care for older people with mental health problems. University of Birmingham; School of Psychology

MSc in Clinical Psychology (1984), University of Birmingham.

BSc honours, (1981), Psychology. University of Birmingham

Research, Teaching and Knowledge Transfer

Research:

Professor Brooker brings a wealth of experience in applied practice research and has a long track record of leading multi-method evaluations of complex interventions across health, social care and third sector service delivery.

She is currently Principal Investigator on the following projects

Completed research programmes at University of Bradford included the development and psychometric testing of Dementia Care Mapping Eighth Edition; the development and testing of the Short Observation Framework for Inspection for the Care Quality Commission and the development and cluster randomised controlled trial of the Enriched Opportunities programme in ExtraCare Housing.

Teaching:

Professor Dawn Brooker is an active teacher, lecturer and supervisor. She has been instrumental in developing and delivering curricula across a wide range of dementia care topics. Under her leadership, the Association for Dementia Studies has worked in partnership with many NHS Trusts, Local Authorities and care providers to provide specialist education and training for professionals and care staff working in care homes, hospitals and in peoples' own homes. She is responsible for the development of much of the curricula within the courses offered by ADS. She lectures on a number of commissioned courses and university programmes.

She is currently Director of Studies for the following PhD students

- 1 Russell, C., Sport, Identity and Dementia: The value(s) of sport/leisure pursuits to identity formation and socialisation processes through the onset of dementia. University of Worcester, 2016- 2019 Chris Russell
- 1 Roseman, C., The long term effects of personalised playlists on dementia. University of Worcester (TAnDem), 2016- 2021 Caroline Roseman
- 1 Veale, A., Tailoring Arts Interventions to Individual Needs in Dementia: delivery of arts activities and individual difference (what works for whom) University of Worcester (TAnDem), 2015- 2018 Amy Veale

- 1 Yemm, H. Knowledge and understanding of cognitive impairment in older adults, University of Worcester 2011-17 Heather Yemm

She is co-supervisor for

- 1 Herz, M., And then there were three: A qualitative exploration of incorporating a live-in care-worker into the home of a couple where one spouse has dementia in Israel, University of Worcester; Advisor, 2012-2017, Funded by Alzheimer's Society of Israel (in conjunction with Tel Aviv University) Michal Herz
- 1 Broome, E. The effect of care staff engagement with creative arts activities on the wellbeing of care home residents with dementia: An intervention study. University of Nottingham (TAnDem), Advisor, 2015- 2018 Emma Broome TAnDem

Knowledge Transfer; Dawn is a strong proponent of developing practical tools and resources to help people implement person centred care. Dawn has also contributed to a number of television and radio broadcasts. It is part of the ethos of ADS that all research projects should have a practical application. Some of this has been achieved through the publication of practical guidebooks and the development of free website resources.

Recent projects include

- 1 Care fit for VIPS a free, online toolkit to help improve the quality of dementia care Care Fit for VIPS
- 1 Development of Alzheimer Society Guidelines for the Assessment of Continuing Health Care Status of people with dementia: Evaluating emotional and psychological needs of people in the later stages of dementia. Alzheimer's Society, 2014 Evaluating emotional and psychological needs
